Farm Bureau Official Information

CHICK HATCHERIES SHOW AN INCREASE

State Inspection System Aids Development of Industry in State.

Never has there been a time when Wisconsin baby chicks needed themselves to a warmer welcome than this year.

According to J. H. Hayes, poultry specialist of the Wisconsin college of agriculture, the number of hatcheries for good hatchlings on the farms around the state, the 49 Wisconsin inspected and accredited hatcheries are running full on the large scale of their orders. In the northern part of the state the orders have come in a little more slowly because of the inclement of a late spring.

"This is a mistake," declares Hayes. "They can raise chickens just as well in the northern part of the state as in any other section. If the farmers do not get their chicks early they are not going to have broilers in time for the resort trade—the best market in the state for the young birds."

"Many Hatcheries." That Wisconsin's baby chick industry is on a sound basis is evidenced by the large increase in the number of hatcheries over 1923 and the raising of the standards. More than 100,000 hens were inspected this year under supervision of H. M. Jackle of the Wisconsin division of markets. These hens had to meet the requirements as to color, size and standard egg production of the owners could not sell their eggs for hatching purposes. Seven thousand male birds were specially handled and selected for the hatchery trade. All males have to be production-bred individuals. In this way purchasers of Wisconsin standard chicks bearing the state label are assured of getting purebred birds of good egg production and standard quality.

Wisconsin is the first state to institute a state-wide inspection of hatcheries and it is the only other state that has a similar plan.

Hatcheries are located in the following counties: Barron (1), Bayfield (1), Brown (2), Dodge (5), Grant (1), Green (1), Jefferson (1), Kenosha (1), Monroe (1), Richland (1), Rock (2), Sauk (1), Sawyer (2), Sheboygan (1), Walworth (1), Washington (1), Waushara (2), Waupaca (2).

C. T. A. PROVE AID TO DEVELOP BADGER DAIRY INDUSTRY

Madison—Wisconsin has 157 active cow testing associations, one of the big reasons why she is regarded the world over as a source of good dairy cattle.

The growth of this side of the state's dairy industry has been steady and sure. In 1910 there were 17 associations. In 1911 the number had increased to 28 and in 1912 there were 33. The total reached in 1923 was 151, and every little while we hear of a new association starting in some community where the farmers have determined to find out which of their cows are working for them.

Wisconsin started her testing work under the Canadian plan, whereby each farmer would take his own samples of milk from the individual cows, weigh his feed, etc., and deliver the samples to a central point where they were tested and the butterfat figured out. This was done one day each month and the farmer paid 50 cents per cow for the service.

There were about 20 of these associations in the state. The plan seemed to work fine as long as old bossy was giving a good flow of milk, but when bossy slowed up the farmer commenced to lose his interest and the samples failed to be delivered. The Canadian system was abandoned in 1909 and since then the association with a paid tester has met the greatest satisfaction.

DOUGLAS COUNTY USES EXPLOSIVES TO BLAST STUMPS

Superior—Delivery of what is supposed to be the largest amount of explosives ever used for agricultural purposes in one county in the United States in a single year has just been started in Douglas county.

According to J. M. Walz, agricultural agent for the county, more than 1,000 farmers of Douglas county placed their orders for explosives this spring and are already starting the work of land clearing, which they hope to have finished by the first of May. These orders called for more than 40,000 pounds of the explosives.

FOOTVILLE

Footville—Mrs. Pearl Davis and son, John, who had just been visiting, Mrs. Ruth Martin, 12, H. Mattie accompanied the Rev. J. C. Blotzky to Chicago Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Heide from the northern part of the state are stopping with his sister, Mrs. Edna Palmer. They were former residents. Mrs. Russell Cowan spent Monday in Milwaukee, checking over the local title, spent the week-end with her relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Whaley returned from Janesville and spent Sunday night at the E. A. Silverthorn home. Mrs. George McFadden who has been visiting for a while in Albany, returned home the first of the week. Miss Marie Darnley spent several days with friends in Chicago, recently. Mr. and Mrs. Owen Cook spent Monday in Beloit. Village election will be held Tuesday.

DAIRY INDUSTRY MORE PROSPEROUS

It appears that farmers are undertaking a normal production program attended, however, by the difficulties arising from high wages and other costs, loss of farm workers and the general disparity between the prices of farm and city products. Domestic demand for farm products is at a high level.

Foreign markets for our cotton, pork, wheat and tobacco seem likely to continue at about the same level. The situation with respect to labor, costs, loss of farm workers and other items does not favor expansion of farm production.

The dairy industry since the war has been relatively more prosperous than certain other types of farming. This has been due mostly to greater use of dairy products by the American people. The per capita consumption has increased 14 per cent from 1919 to 1922. Milk production for the same period has increased near the same per cent. Present rates of consumption will about absorb the production that is in prospect in the United States for 1924. A somewhat unfavorable factor in the outlook is the possibility of greater foreign competition. Surplus production in foreign countries is increasing and larger quantities may seek market in the United States. Last year butter imports were equal to 2 per cent of our own production, and cheese imports were equal to about 17 per cent of our cheese production. Importers pay a tariff of 8 cents a pound on butter. The highest of two tariff rates apply to cheese—either 3 cents a pound or 25 per cent of the per pound value.

The past year was one of great industrial prosperity and consumption of milk and dairy products reached a high level.

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Eczema of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Rowley's Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

Timothy Nolan, an attorney for the F. W. W., as the "triumvirate" of the separatist radical outfit in Montana.

Coupled with the attack on Senator Wheeler, the news bureau statement repeats what purports to be a "statement" to radical workers and sympathizers by C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the national workers' party, who is described as "friend and intimate of Dunne and D. C. Dorman, a notorious radical," one of the leaders in the Minut, I. W. W. riots and "an ardent supporter of Senator Wheeler."

It quotes Ruthenberg as saying: "Our propaganda must make it clear that the Teapot Dome scandal is not a case of individual corruption, that it is inseparably bound with the essence of the capitalist government. We must explain that it is not a case of kept men in the government, but that the United States has a hope of government. We shall arrange, as soon as possible, mass meetings in every big city and industrial center. We must prepare the mass meetings so carefully that they shall be real mass meetings. We must show that what we did in the Lenin memorial meetings we can do also against the American government."

MELLON IDEA IS HIT BY SENATORS

Earned Income Recommendation Turned Down in Committee.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1923 by Jamesville Daily Gazette

Washington—The Mellon plan has not been inserted in the revenue bill by the senate finance committee, as was stated in some published reports last night. Instead, one of the principal recommendations made by the secretary of the treasury has been temporarily set aside. The Mellon plan which was a carefully balanced scheme, was to be given effect by the reduction of the tax on income from small income, and the energy of his hands or his mind the concessions proposed by Secretary Mellon.

The house ignored the Mellon recommendation for a flat 25 percent reduction on all earned incomes and it should apply only to incomes below $20,000 a year. The senate finance committee, despite Mr. Mellon's advice, has cut it still further to $10,000.

There is, of course, absolutely no reason," Mr. Mellon told the senate finance committee, "for a $20,000 limitation on earned income. If the distinction between unearned income and earned income is good, it is good in every bracket. If the tax on unearned income in excess of $20,000 is at the proper rate, then the same rate is too high for earned income."

What Mellon Meant
Stated in another way, what Mr. Mellon meant was that a man who earned $20,000 as a doctor, lawyer, salesman, business executive, music composer, inventor or any profession in which brains are the sole capital, and he should not be in the same position as a man of inherited or accumulated capital who clips investment coupons and gets an income of $20,000. People in the latter class, for instance, have approximately $350,000 of capital, which at six percent earns for them about $21,000 a year. They pay the same rate of taxes on the professional man, yet when he is sick, his income stops and when he dies he cannot bequeath his law practice or his medical ability to another, though the man with the capital can go away from his place of business and spend a life of leisure and still draw the same income. He can bequeath it to another person when he dies. Technically, he doesn't earn his income in the same sense as the person who works with his mind or his hands.

Mr. Mellon says that if the senate thinks the rate of taxation for a man of $20,000 income should be fixed at a certain rate, then the man with the other kind of income should not have the same advantage.

Mr. Mellon incidentally has agreed that all income below $5,000 should be considered as "earned," so that widows and orphans and others who may be unable to turn a livelihood shall not be penalized. Five thousand dollars is the average income on an estate of approximately $50,000.

The house bill further complicated matters by providing that the definition of "earned income" should include in cases where the income is the result of the use of capital in connection with personal services, and amount representing a reasonable salary for personal services rendered.

Mr. Mellon criticizes that provision thus:

Great Difficulties
"The treasury department for the years of excess profits taxes experienced the greatest administrative difficulties in determining what was a reasonable salary in cases of closely-owned corporations. The present definition means that in every case where there is any personal service whatever, the department must determine what is a reasonable salary for those particular services. This would bring up for determination by the department several hundred thousand separate cases each year, and you can easily understand the difficulties the department will have in administering such a law."

Mr. Mellon might have added something about the difficulties of the taxpayers who would have to journey to Washington or hire lawyers to prove to the government what is and what is not a reasonable salary, with the consequent result that it will be cheaper to accept unjust taxation than the expense of obtaining justice.

Action Not Final
The senate finance committee's action is, of course, not final and there are indications that the whole matter will be opened up again before the revenue bill is reported. Persons who earn their incomes, however, have thus far been given no special treatment by the house than Secretary Mellon recommended, and the senate committee has carried the discrimination against earned incomes still further.

Third Municipal Clinic, April 9; Is Open to All

Announcing that the third municipal child welfare and maternity clinic will be conducted by the city health department Wednesday, April 9, Dr. Fred B. Welch, city health officer, calls attention to the importance of periodic examinations, particularly of children, in order to note their progress.

"Whether a child is healthy or under-nourished, said Dr. Welch, "can always be determined by a single physical examination. Periodic examinations and estimation of increase in body weight and height often furnish the most reliable guide as to the health of a child. That a child fails to meet the standards of nutrition and growth may be due to the presence of physical defects or it may be due to improper care and environment."

"The child welfare clinic of this city was established for the purpose of giving the mother an accurate knowledge of the physical progress of her child. The examination is only the first step in the real value of the work will only be evident when examinations are repeated and a sure way of the findings made."

"The great work of the clinic will be in arousing interest of mothers in personal hygiene, in the value of proper and adequate nutrition, rest, and the regularity in the practice of health habits in their children."

"Our well-equipped clinic is the public's clinic and it was created for the purpose of helping the children of Jamesville to attain and maintain better health, which may in after life help them to 'live most and serve best.'"

True Story of Woodrow Wilson

Clayton's would be resolved by a commission of inquiry during the session of which the disputants would agree for at least nine months to engage in hostilities. All the important nations of the world, with the exception of Germany, Japan and Turkey, had either accepted the principle of such treaties or had ratified parts of that kind with the United States.

Mr. Bryan pleaded with the president to give Germany another chance to accept the principle of an investment treaty. Mr. Bryan was convinced that the Germans did not want war with America and that they would look upon the suggestions as a loophole and a way out of an embarrassing situation. For even if they had intended to send instructions to torpedo the Lusitania, he could not bring himself to believe that they would repeat such an act when once the effect on American opinion was known in Berlin.

President Wilson yielded, to Mr. Bryan's persuasive arguments and permitted him to draft an instruction to Ambassador Gerard to be sent simultaneously with the Lusitania into advising the German government of the willingness of the United States to submit the questions at issue to a commission of investigation on the principle of the Bryan treaty.

This instruction to Ambassador Gerard which has been variously called a "postscript" or a "supplementary note" was never sent from Washington. It was under the circumstances as exciting as it was significant. It would have made a world-wide sensation at the time that the swift passage of events since those dramatic days has to some extent robbed the incident of its true importance in the history of the neutrality period. The supplementary instruction to Ambassador Gerard reached the state department from the White House and was about to be put into cable and sent to Berlin. No one knew about it except the president and the secretary of state, Mr. Robert Lansing was a confidant of the state department, and it was natural that he should learn of the supplementary instruction. He could not understand it and immediately communicated with the private secretary, Tamm.

In an effort to learn its significance, Mr. Tamm communicated with his close friend, the secretary of war, Mr. Garrison, who said he knew nothing about the supplementary instruction as it had not been discussed in the cabinet meeting. Mr. Lansing made it clear that the supplementary instruction was a reconsideration. In his judgment from the strong words contained in the note itself, Word was passed to other members of the cabinet and soon Mr. Wilson was besieged with a request to reconsider. Meanwhile, the note itself was held up at the state department until the matter could be discussed further. Private Secretary Tamm made an eloquent speech to his chief, pointing out the danger of such a step, that possibly misunderstanding might grow from it, that Germany might get the impression, the United States would not fight for her rights and that it was essential that American rights without equivocation.

There were no direct threats of resignation made to Mr. Wilson by members of his cabinet but the president saw fire in the eyes of his advisers. He finally ordered the supplementary instruction suppressed and the matter was never again to be brought up.

With the strong words undiluted by any suggestion of weakness, Later on in the campaign of 1916 the matter of the cabinet and soon Mr. Wilson was besieged with a request to reconsider. The Massachusetts senator was endeavoring to prove that Mr. Wilson's strong words were tempered with hints that they were not meant seriously and that Germany was despoiling American rights because she knew or believed the United States would not, under the Wilson administration, defend those rights. ## Street Presents Paving Argument

Pleasant street in its present condition presents the greatest argument in the world for permanent paving, city officials declare. It is a dirt street and was torn up considerably last fall by the laying of sewer and water mains and laterals. As a result it is in bad condition this spring in putting dirt and gravel streets back in shape. Work was interrupted Tuesday by the snow storm. The slick creating crew of the street department has completed all its work on the west side except on streets having the ornamental lighting system. Work is being done on the second ward this week and Tuesday night had progressed as far as Corolla street.

JACKSON SCHOOL PUPILS INSPECTED

Having completed the examination of some 550 children in the Jackson school, Miss Grace Armstrong, city school nurse, commenced work Wednesday in the Jackson school. Owing to the small number of pupils enrolled in this school, it was expected only a day would be required for it. The next ward to be inspected will be examined next.

SURGEON DIES IN MIDST OF WORK

Dr. W. F. Malone, Milwaukee, Is Stricken While Performing Operation.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Milwaukee—While performing an operation, Tuesday, for appendicitis at Hinner hospital, which he founded, Dr. William F. Malone, 42, was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage, dying almost immediately.

Dr. Malone's assistant, Dr. John Schroeder, noticed the strained movement of Dr. Malone during the operation and, taking away the latter's instrument, requested him to sit down. Nurses and attendants removed Dr. Malone to his office, where he died. Dr. Schroeder finished the operation. The patient, Edmund Kendeziak, 25, was reported as recovering satisfactorily.

Throughout his entire career, Dr. Malone had been a close student of surgery, devoting practically his entire time to it. With the exception of his time in his office, where he devoted little time to recreation.

It has been decided to hold the Fourth International Congress of Refrigeration in London next June.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get At The Root Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking laxatives or trying to push up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach trouble.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with indigestible foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Write for free literature and get a 10-day trial.

Make Final Plans for Music Pageant

All grade school teachers in the city are helping in the administration and management of the concert and pageant, "Through the Year in Song," to be given by representatives of all grades and both high schools at the high school auditorium, Friday night. Two rehearsals each day are being held this week and other finishing touches, including the making of artificial flowers by the children themselves, under the direction of Miss Martha Green, net supervisor, who has also done most of the work of costume designing. Costumes have been made from hand-dyed cloth, to insure shades for the carrying out of the proper color scheme.

All accompaniments, except those for the orchestra and girls' choir, are being played by Miss Marie Shewers, director of music in the junior high school. Miss Marie Hanson, music supervisor, is in general charge.

The Strang Dug line and the street car system are furnishing transportation to rehearsals for children, free of charge.

Bird House Contest.

The Gazette announced its birdhouse contest for next week in spite of the weather and the promise of more just like it. It may be that we shall have snow later than April 1, but when Spring does really come, it is as the lifting of a curtain. One day it is winter and the next day we greet the arrival of the birds. Hence it is well to be prepared. The Gazette finds that more people have been feeding the birds left here at home during the winter this season, than usual and we look for great flocks of them as soon as winter has said its final farewell. The birds will need homes and the bird house contest is for the purpose of stimulating this friendly task of giving them a habitation and a welcome.

We spend plenty on tourist camps but we are niggardly in welcoming these other tourists who come early and stay late. While here, they are our good friends, and many a devastating bug and worm has passed into oblivion and saved farmers and gardeners time and money by the energy and early rising of the birds we are looking after. It is a good thing to stimulate the boys and girls in to action with bird house architecture and care of birds.

"We must bring honesty back to government," says Mr. McAdoo. At $150,000 as a retaining fee, perhaps.

This Is a Good Thing to Read at This Time.

In this hour of hysteria, of lying and partisan politics, of hearsay evidence and testimony which would not stand in any court from that of the most unsophisticated justice of the peace to highest; when rumor and character assassination is common, when gross libels under the guise of investigation are permitted without check, and truth seems to be far away, it is well to pause a moment and read the words of Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, spoken in the senate of the United States on February 23, 1924:

I look upon the Department of Justice as really the key to the situation as it is now presented to the country. A most extraordinary condition of affairs obtains, and it must necessarily be to a marked extent through the instrumentalities of the Department of Justice that these wrongs are to be righted and that proper proceedings shall be had, both with reference to the recovery of property and the punishment of individuals who may be guilty of violations of the law.

Not only is that true with reference to the particular matter which we have been investigating for the last several weeks, but there are other conditions obtaining through the country relative to other matters, relative to other investigations, particularly with reference to the Veterans' Bureau, relative to law enforcement, which make the Department of Justice at this time altogether the most important department of the government. The position calls for a man not only of transcendent ability, a man of health and vigor, but also one who has the unquestioned confidence of the country. It is a mere matter of the performance of a public duty to have at the head of this department at this time a man in whom the country has complete confidence.

I am not concerned at this time, because I think there is a different way to arrive at a conclusion with respect to that matter. I am not concerned at this time as to the particular delinquencies which have been charged to the Attorney General, whether he is associated with the oil scandal, with speculations in oil stocks, whether he has been guilty of any pronounced and affirmative violation of law or any pronounced dereliction of duty. As was said by the senator from Arkansas (Mr. Robinson), upon these questions, at some time or in some place, he ought to be given a fair and impartial hearing before an impartial tribunal. I know of no way of our giving that except in the manner pointed out by the Constitution.

We are in need of better speed protection. Some of the auto drivers are complaining that they are interfered with while going at a less rate per mile than the machine can do.

Some Day.

On that plot of ground purchased by the city and adjacent to the high school grounds, there may come a day when we shall have a Community building which will be a memorial to the soldiers who fought in the world war, a museum of the history of the county and of the covered wagon period of the city of Janesville, a depository of the daily history of the city and vicinity, and a home for the several societies which have as their foundation the preservation of the traditions and memories of the achievements of men and women who have built this nation.

There is getting to be a feeling that with all the gossip let loose in Washington, there will not be enough to last out the year and some of the men's sewing societies will be laid out for something to talk about later on.

That Argyle man who will give $20,000 for a new community building is a public benefactor of the right sort.

DOMESTIC WORKERS ORGANIZE

By FRIDERIC J. HANCOCK.

Washington.—Something new in the labor union movement is the National Association of Wage Earners which colored women of the country have formed primarily for domestic workers. Headquarters have been purchased in this city and a Practice House established which has many of the features of a school of domestic science.

Miss Nannie H. Burroughs, of the District of Columbia, is president of the association. The other officers are Mrs. Mary Bethune, of Florida, vice president; Miss Minnie L. Bradley, of Connecticut, executive secretary; Mrs. Maggie L. Walker, of Virginia, treasurer; Miss Elizabeth C. Carter, of Massachusetts, chairman of the investment board; and Mrs. Lizzie Fouse, of Kentucky, registrar.

The association is heralded as "a labor organization with a constructive program." This program is set forth categorically, and strangely enough a demand for "more pay and shorter hours" does not appear as the first fundamental object of the movement.

To develop and encourage efficient workers, to assist women in finding the kind of work for which they seem best qualified, to elevate the migrant class of workers and incorporate them permanently in service of some kind, and to standardize living conditions, are the listed primary purposes of the union of colored women. Then comes the wage question which is stated merely as a desire to "secure a wage that will enable women to live decently."

Other objects are to assemble the multitude of thousands of employers and employees into a set of common demands and strive mutually to adjust them; to enlighten women as to the value of organization; to make and supply appropriate uniforms for working women through a profit-sharing enterprise; and to influence legislation affecting women wage earners.

There are three million negro women engaged in domestic and personal service occupations in the United States. "Negro women wage earners are the only large unprotected labor group in America," says the association in its constitution.

"Unorganized labor will be exploited and mistreated. An organized labor group gets fairer wages, better living conditions, greater respect—economic justice. Then, too, a labor organization that functions properly develops in the workers greater skill and general efficiency, pride of occupation, and improvement in general conduct. The latter improvements are as important as the former considerations."

In one of the reports of the National Woman's Trade Union League of America the statement was made that "of all the hard fates to be met, the hardest that the American born child can face is to be born a little colored girl baby, and this sad truth is here put into words that may be reserved in expression, but contain depths of suffering for our colored sisters."

Representatives of the Women in Industrial Service listed 156 establishments in the middle west employing over 15,000 negro women, and reported that general standards for this class of workers were found to be somewhat lower than the average and their industrial opportunities to be decidedly more restricted than those of other women workers.

"In the face of these findings," says the president of the new association, "nothing has been done to help our condition, and we are lacking in common sense and constructive initiative if we sit down and wait for white women to do for us what we can do for ourselves. After reading this report a few colored women talked the matter over seriously and decided not to stop until we have organized all negro working women into a labor union." She adds that "what we want is help to get this message over to white people who will not get just as much benefit out of it as the colored people—perhaps more."

Emphasis is laid upon the statement that domestic servants are the only wage earners that are not improving the quality of their service. Housewives put up with more slipshod methods and haphazard work than employees in any other field. The air and the magazines are full of complaints, but complaints alone will not stimulate in household workers a desire to give better service. It is also pointed out that "people have been led to neglect schools for their own children, to neglect stores and factories, but the women who have the closest personal contact with the family are picked green from the streets or greasy from employment agencies."

It is upon the hypothesis that women can not do domestic work without training, and that hundreds of such workers are in service by reason of necessity, therefore the work is distasteful to them and they do not try to become efficient, that the Domestic Service Practice House has been established. Short-cut courses in dress making, but with the materials and problems given are to be handled in the homes, will be given women who seek positions as cooks, chambermaids, housekeepers, waitresses, nurses, or maids.

All who apply for work will be given practical examinations or try-outs. If a woman wants a place as cook she will be given meat, vegetables, bread and pastry to cook. If she seeks a position as a waitress, she will be required to set a table, serve a meal and tell what she knows about serving and caring for the dining room and its appointments. All applicants will be given instructions in good manners and general conduct, and advised as to the kind of clothes to wear for their particular work. They will also be taught how to care for their own rooms.

Applicants will be graded according to the way they handle practical tests, their general manner and their personal appearance. Each woman will be given a service and a rating card, and the one to be kept at the service center and the other to be sent to the employer. Employers are asked to cooperate by keeping the rating card accurately and encouraging the workers by fair treatment.

Training in the habits of courtesy and standards of conduct and improvement in personal cleanliness and care of living quarters will be stressed, it is said. In the matter of dress, an effort will be made to popularize a dress of which the domestic workers will be just as proud as the nurse is of her uniform.

It is also planned to maintain an emergency help register. Capable women who do not work out regularly but are available for special occasions, or when the cook, housekeeper, or other help does not report for work will be enrolled, and their services will be available on call. This, it is said, will save thousands of homes from being thrown out of gear.

The Washington Practice House will be used as a model for others to be established throughout the country as the organization grows in membership.

They use an airplane for a hearse in London. That should call for the use of a submarine for some funerals in Washington. Depends on which way the passenger is going.

Logical proof that congress is a bird is at hand: It has been sitting for three months and has hatched one bill.

Apparently the United States senate believes it is an object of contempt at all times.

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE MONEY WORSHIPPER.

He has money, but men sneered.
At the way his wealth had grown;
Talked behind his back and jeered,
Said his heart was cold as stone,
Told their stories of his greed,
Whispered of his doubtful deals,
He had money, yes, indeed,
But no friend behind his heels.

He had money—loads of it,
Gathered in an underhanded way,
All squeezed dry of truth and wit,
And the friendships of the day,
Laughed at by the men he knew,
Made a thing of common jest,
He was rich, but not a friend,
Gold was all that he possessed.

Workmen talked behind his back
Of the petty tricks he played,
Said he played the single back
When his client on it was laid.
No one ever spoke his praise,
No one ever called him friend,
And he rounded out his days
Rich, but lonely to the end.

Not for all the gold on earth,
Not for all that it can do,
Would I squeeze my life of mirth
And the joy of friendships true.
I would rather never see true,
Never see my purse grow fat,
Than to money be a slave
And to live my life like that!

HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1924.
After the early morning hours the planetary influences of this day are unfavorable, according to astrology. Noptune, Venus and the Sun are all in malefic aspect.

Women should be most distrustful while this conjunction prevails, for they may be easily influenced. They should be wary of all oil speculation and should take no initiative in seeking work. This is not a favorable day for the theaters or for any kind of entertainment. Audiences may be extraordinarily critical and hard to please.

Weddings today forecast many undertakings and even financial misfortunes. A tendency to extremes may mark today's activities and the rule is not a lucky one for important matters.

The Moon enters Capricorn, a movable, earthy sign ruled by Saturn and the inclination may be toward anxieties, nervousness and depression. For this reason, the most optimistic thoughts should be banished.

The most pacifying affirmations will be found helpful when there is a tendency toward hurry and carelessness of the sort that causes accidents.

Venus is in a place supposed to presage many marriages and to indicate that persons of all ages will seek companions.

Railways are to have a busy spring and summer, but they are to suffer serious accidents. The danger of derailed and broken down trains is foretold and the illness of many prominent men is forecast at this time.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a quiet and uneventful season. Those who are employed should be very industrious.

Children born on this day may have lives that are very eventful. These subjects of Aries are likely to care more for travel and change than for money and fame.

A study of "colds," recently concluded, shows that forty-two per cent of us lose one day a year on that account. It was found that the average duration of a "cold" was two and two tenths days, and that "cold cures" did not shorten the duration.

The hotter the school-room the higher the percentage of absences on account of sickness.

Perhaps you've noticed that the bells at the ball often ding down at home.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author.

TELL IT NOT IN GATH

Once it was a little mal de mer, as the French say, able to mention stomachs, but now it requires a medical specialist to think of anything they don't talk about in polite society. I can remember when I first began to write and talk to mixed audiences I had to censor my stuff carefully. Nowadays I find even my raw material is considered pretty tame by contrast with the line dispensed by some young women magazine writers.

Here is an appeal from a "modern woman" who implores members of her sex who have "gone under the knife" to forget about it at least when visiting their friends, for, she protests, "I and many others have been compelled to sit and listen for hours to our alling friends discuss their operations. I know by heart what each wonderful surgeon said about the cure and how near unto death each of my post-operative acquaintances has been."

I sometimes wonder if there are any more of these women left. It seems that women who sit around all day playing cards or devote their lives to jazz dancing have but one topic of conversation, and that is the exploitation of their personal ailments and organs. If they are the same at home, I should think the average husband would prefer to spend his evenings and holidays at the dispensary or the morgue.

Still and all, if the nurse who takes care of you does her stuff and the doctor who treats you is a reasonable man, there's considerable satisfaction in telling the world that yours was the worst case they'd ever had, and then if necessary to claim your claim, making the battle out from your pocket with the remains of the organ embalmed in alcohol.

Nowadays, however, having an operation is like a bad dream. You don't want to attribute present ill health to a past operation is about as reasonable as it would be to ascribe misadventures of Bright's disease, cancer

ATLANTA CHIEF OF POLICE SUSPENDED

Violation of Rules Charged by Commission; Candler Case Is Hinted.

(By Associated Press.)
Atlanta, Ga. — Night Chief of Police E. L. Jett today occupied Chief of Police James L. Beavers' accustomed place as head of the Atlanta police department, pending the disposition of charges of violation of rules governing the conduct of his office and of conduct unbecoming a police officer, against Chief Beavers at a meeting of the police commission of the city council last night.

Chief Beavers was suspended by unanimous vote of the council committee. The main charge against Chief Beavers, that he violated the rules of the police department which provide that the majority of the force will be permitted to work on overtime cases, nor will any member of the department be allowed to work on cases that will lead up to divorce proceedings, mentioned no names.

It was charged, however, that the violation occurred "on about Feb. 25," the date of the arrest of Mrs. A. G. Candler Sr., young wife of A. G. Candler Sr., Atlanta soft drink king, in an apartment in company with W. J. Stohard and G. W. Keelings, two Atlanta business men.

ELKHORN

MRS. GRANT HARRINGTON.

Elkhorn — August Brown and Beatrice Carwell were married at the Methodist parsonage in Rockford, Tuesday afternoon, March 25. Mr. Brown is an employee of the Frank Holton Co. and his bride is an only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carwell. She was for a time an employee of the Delavan telephone office.

Plans have been made and bids will be received at the State Bank on April 5 for remodeling the Elkhorn Congregational church. The plans call for a new roof, heating plant, basement dining room and kitchen and redecorating.

The funeral of Mrs. Emma Allen was held at the Lafayette church, Wednesday afternoon, at 1:30, the Rev. A. H. Bell and Mr. H. H. H. officiating. The burial was in the church cemetery.

Jack Cunningham, Whitewater, who loves moonshine not too wisely but too well is a boarder at Sheriff Wylie's hotel for 60 days. Jack has been there before.

Real estate continues to move in the city. Herbert Zwischel has bought the Alford Street building on Jackson street and will get possession by April 15. This new property will make the Zwischels a pretty home. Mr. and Mrs. Stahl will remain with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kluge, parents of Mrs. Stahl for the present.

Jack Markey is building a large glassed-in porch on his residence, N. Church street.

Lee Wilkinson moved his family to the country, Monday and Joseph Walters will occupy the house at corner of N. Church and North streets.

John Hutton an employee of the Frank Holton company was motorist on the Milwaukee Monday by Charles Steffery, for an operation for appendicitis. Miss Hutton, her brother George, with Dr. H. H. Young, accompanied him. Mr. Hutton is reported doing well.

The senior class will convene Tuesday, to their classroom, Everett Johnson, who is ill in St. Mary's hospital, Monday.

Clarence Brethenthin traded his auto bought in January and is driving new touring car. Louis Burton has a new automobile and James Murphy bought a 7 passenger car here this week.

POLICE HUNT "DOPE" ADDICT

Police spent several hours Wednesday scouring the city for a man believed to be a narcotic addict, who was scared away in the midst of an attempt to arrest him by three officers in front of a drug hospital about 10:30 a. m. Wednesday. The man involved was one of Dr. W. A. Munn, Dr. M. A. Cunningham and Dr. F. B. Fawcett.

Several other doctors in the hospital at the time the alleged addict was discovered assisted police in the chase but the man escaped. He was tracked down the Evansville "cut-off."

HEALTH EXPERT AT JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL

Dr. F. F. Bowman, representative of the state board of health spoke to the students of the Junior high school Wednesday morning, and emphasized the need of the confinement of individuals in with communicable diseases. He also told of the new experiments which have established the fact that some persons, though themselves uninfected, were capable of carrying disease.

Members of the chapter of the P. M. Teachers' association and other members of the Junior high school heard Dr. Bowman at the high school Tuesday night. The talk was valuable, as it considered the problem of disease control from a community standpoint, rather than individual.

The prevention of disease was the subject of his talk to students at Meigs hospital Tuesday.

He was scheduled for several addresses there Wednesday afternoon.

DR. GOWMAN SPEAKS AT LIONS' LUNCHEON

Dr. F. F. Bowman, of the state board of health, gave another address of address, informing the public what the state department is attempting at the Lions club luncheon at the Grand hotel Wednesday.

Dr. J. H. Hammers reported on the progress being made in the state hotel campaign and appealed to the Lions for subscriptions.

Fifty per cent of the club members have already subscribed. It was reported.

REPORT INCREASE IN SEYLER VALUES

Elkhorn and M. T. C. Properties Prosper, Receiver Says in Testimony.

Kenosha, Wis., March 25.—The value of property of the Elkhorn Oil company and the M. T. C. Oil and Gas company, in which approximately 7,000 Wisconsin residents are stockholders, has increased between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 since January, 1923, C. H. White, one of the joint receivers of the two companies, testified late Tuesday.

The hearing was before O. L. Miller, special master appointed by Federal Judge Pollock, to air complaints on the part of William Seyler and Clifford Williams, of Milwaukee, and others, that the receivers and attorney charges for personal services, aggregating $25,000, are excessive and should not be allowed. The action is the outgrowth of an application to lift the receivership in which both companies were placed in January, 1923. Seyler was the principal organizer and president of the companies, and Williams is attorney for the stockholders.

Mr. White, the only witness examined Tuesday, testified in support of the receivers' claims, saying they received $100,000 in excess income taxes and had increased the companies' revenue about $25,000 a year. They also adjusted one claim of $70,000 brought against the companies by William Seyler, Mr. White stated.

The witness also declared the receivers had reduced the companies' debts to about $145,000, preserved intact contracts that would have paid, paid taxes in arrears and retained the companies' earnings by paying no salaries.

Throughout the examination, Williams indicated the companies planned to reveal evidence of internal strife in the corporations before the receivers and also that many of the profitable transactions mentioned by the receivers were the plans of the company officers.

The AMERICAN CLUB

THIS is the clubhouse, home of several hundred single men of the Kohler organization—many of whom, one of these days, will marry and own their own homes along the shady winding streets of the Village of Kohler.

Meanwhile here is a stout roof overhead and warmth and cheer within. Privacy and a good bed. Hearty food and plenty of it. Bowling alleys and billiard tables. Comradeship and competition.

Kohler of Kohler at ease or at play is as earnestly on the job as Kohler of Kohler at work. Whether the aim be a crack baseball team or a finer bathtub; better American citizens or a more efficient electric plant, there is something in the Kohler atmosphere that produces exceptional results.
